Riverdale Senior Citizens are Sharing and Thankful

The first meeting of November was held on November 1st. President Irene Moehring conducted the meeting. She thanked all those who brought food for the banks, both our town's and the Armed Forces Food Bank. She asked us all to continue being so generous. She also reminded us that our property taxes were due. Chaplain Grace Chiesa gave an inspirational message. A rousing chorus of God Bless America was led by Marion Davis, and Vice President Loretta Lippens asked all the Veterans to stand, and they were given acknowledgement and thanked for their service to our country. She read a lovely poem called A Tribute to Veterans, written by Elaine Peacock, one of our members. November birthday celebrants were acknowledged and serenaded with a Happy Birthday song. The trip committee gave a tentative list of trips for next year. * A representative from the Montville Chelsea Nursing Home spoke briefly, then played some fun card games with us. They provided cookies and cider for all.

The second meeting was conducted by President Irene Moehring and Chaplain Grace Chiesa read a Prayer for Thanksgiving, written by member Elaine Peacock. The group was led by Gordon Davis in singing America. Fifty-nine members were present. Vice President Loretta Lippens read a humorous story, The Turkey Flew Out of the Oven. The seniors find laughter is good for the soul. * We had a program called Stop the Pain presented by Dr. Jan Kasprowcez from the NJ Spinal Care in Wayne. Following the meeting, he met and spoke with anyone who so desired. * Hope you all have Happy Thanksgiving and a blessed holiday to all!

Presented by Marion Davis.

Please continue to be mindful of safety during drop off and pick up times at school. We have recently initiated some changes to the morning drop off procedures, which have resulted in some improvement. Parents and guardians can assist us in our efforts by releasing their youngsters from the passenger side of the car only, and adhering to parking regulations. District administration continues to monitor the situation in conjunction with our police department and traffic safety officers. Your continued cooperation will keep Riverdale's children safe.

Please join members of the school's Band and Chorus as they perform at the Riverdale Annual Tree Lighting on December 7.

We extend thanks to Mrs. Delores Sarf, who has recently "retired" from decades of serving as our piano accompanist during concerts. She has enriched the lives of our school community and will be dearly missed. If there is anyone in our community who is interested in accompanying our student performances on the piano, please feel free to contact Mr. Cortright or Dr. Wyks. A nominal stipend is available to a qualified and interested individual.

Riverdale residents are cordially invited to our free Winter Concert, which will be held on December 14 in the school gymnasium at 7:30 PM. For those community members who are interested in attending the dress rehearsal on December 10 with our students, please contact Mrs. Kammen in the school office for additional information, 973-839-1300.

Thank you to all of the parents who visited their child's class in action during our recent school visitation day. We are proud of the work of our staff and students and were pleased to provide the opportunity for so many parents to witness our programs in action. Thank you to the PTA for assisting and signing in our visitors.

Approximately 100 parents joined throughout the day.

Annually, our school district establishes two formalized objectives that are subsequently approved by the Board. Please be advised that the school level objectives for school year are:

1. Students and parents will have increased access to information, via the district website, in order to support the home-school connection and promote student success. Specifically, the teaching staff will utilize the teacher and web pages to promote skill practice (K-8), keep parents informed of student progress (6-8) and highlight classroom activities and initiatives (PreK-8).
2. By June 2011, there will be an increase of at least 15% in the total number of students in grades 4-6, who will score in the proficient (200-249) or advanced proficient (250+) as measured by the Language Arts section of NJASK.

Dipping Underground at a Tuscan Spa submitted by Carolyn Masone

Italy

Spaaaaah. Just saying the word makes your shoulders relax, doesn't it? Now try "Itaaaaalian Spaaaaah". Say it soft and it's almost like praying....So I went to the temple of my choice, Grotto Giusti Terme, in the little town of Montesummano Terme, not far from Florence, Tuscany (www.grottagiustispa.com).

In a country brimming with unique experiences, this one stands out. Its story begins over a century ago, when the Giusti family was getting rich in the mining industry. One day digging workers discovered a cavity in the earth, complete with stalactites and natural lakes. After realizing the water was a thermal, the Giusti Family said, "Addio", to mining and "Ciao, Bella" to a hotel and spa. And I'm glad they did.

The underground cavity creates increasingly warmer temperatures and humidity as you progress along its different levels. The temperature at each level, however, remains constant. The levels are identified in Dante's journey-through-the-afterlife fashion: Paradiso Purgatorio, and naturalmente, Inferno. Even Limbo is represented by a lake that keeps constant, pleasant temperatures. The cavities are well lit and there are pathways to walk rimmed with railings. Chairs and chaise lounges are set up at certain points along the way, inviting you to settle in where the temperature suits you best.

As I walked through the cavities, I was wearing the white terry robe and disposable slippers issued by the spa to all of their guests. I could have wrapped my hair in a towel, but I decided to brave the elements. And of course, I had my bottle of water. The first level was Paradiso, with Limbo off to the right. As I walked down the pathway into Purgatorio, I could feel the heat and humidity mildly increasing. Some people stop here, but I had to see what Hell was like. I can tell you it has very little to do with Dante's version. Here, it was very hot with very high humidity. However, despite all our perspiring, the breathing was easy. Somehow, the air is circulating down there.

Anyway, that's where I got comfortable in a lounge chair and closed my eyes. It was quiet and other-worldly. There was a sense of being closer to the core of the Earth than ever before. I considered becoming a Hobbit. After a while though, the heat got a little heavy. I slowly got up and made my way to Purgatorio, where I transitioned to cooler air in another lounge chair.

After that it was on to Paradiso, but not without a stop beside Limbo's natural reflecting pool. Oddly, it did make me feel suspended in time.

Once I slowly emerged from Paradiso to the hallway of the spa, it was time for a full body massage, followed by an aromatherapy facial. Although I've had such treatments before at other spas, having them after a sojourn in the underground left me more relaxed and receptive to the benefits of the treatments. I was also very hungry. I had a leisurely lunch at an outside table of the spa restaurant. Because the spa is located in the middle of a park, it's quiet, relaxing and full of trees, grass, birds and sky.

A luxury hotel is attached to the spa for those who wish to prolong the ecstasy. Rumor has it that Michael Douglas has been among their guests. The treatment menu and programs are extensive and varied, from traditional Italian approaches to Ayurveda.

All in all, you'll love it, whichever ring of Dante's Inferno you happen to be on.

Did You Know?

- A Christmas club, a savings account in which a person deposits a fixed amount of money regularly to be used at Christmas for shopping, came about around 1905.
- America's official national Christmas tree is located in King's Canyon

National Park in California. The tree, a giant sequoia called the "General Grant Tree," is over 300 feet (90 meters) high. It was made the official Christmas tree in 1925

- Christmas trees are edible. Many parts of pines, spruces, and firs can be eaten. The needles are a good source of vitamin C. Pine nuts, or pine cones, are also a good source of nutrition.
- In 1947, Toys for Tots started making the holidays a little happier for children by organizing its first Christmas toy drive for needy youngsters.

Appalachian Trail Update: Jarred Bush's "Trek on the Trail"

At last report, Jarred, Louis and company were heading south from Big Meadows, Virginia along the Trail in Shenandoah National Park. Their goal was to reach Waynesboro, Virginia by mid-October, and be 852.5 miles from the end of the trail at Springer Mountain, Georgia. We heard from Jarred on October 20, when they were through Waynesboro and on their way to covering the 134 miles that would take them to the next supply stop in Daleville, Virginia. There Jarred would pick up new boots, boot liners and warmer socks. After six days of hiking, Daleville was another day or two away.

Stopping for a lunch break, Louis began preparing an avocado. His knife slipped off the pit, and stabbed through his palm, severing tendons on its way. They were at least 15 miles from a trail town, and had to get medical attention as soon as possible. Fortunately, the hikers were prepared with good maps, and located an emergency service trail that crossed the main AT. The service trail came upon a road within two miles, where Jarred and Louis were picked up by a local gentleman who took them to his family doctor. The wound could not be stitched, since the extent of internal damage could not be accurately determined without surgery. The doctor suggested Louis contact home and either arrange for treatment at Roanoke Hospital or fly home for treatment by professionals in his home state. After a call home, a flight was booked for early the next morning. Jarred and Louis were referred to a family known a "Trail Angels" who took them in for the night, offered them food, warm showers, laundry facilities, beds and all the comforts of their home! They had been thru-hikers once, and were well aware of the challenges and hardships hikers can face. The next morning they drove Louis to the airport to be sure he was safely on his way back to New Jersey. Louis has had hand surgery, and is in therapy to regain use of his fingers and hand strength. Unfortunately, his dream of thru-hiking the AT is on hold for the time being.

Jarred has continued on, and is hiking with the companions he met along the trail. They have completed Virginia, passing though some beautiful places and hiking in snow at the higher elevations. He is sleeping with his boots in his sleeping bag to keep them from freezing solid by morning! Check out McAfee Knob, Virginia on line for a taste of the where he has traveled. On November 15, Jarred picked up his supply package in Damascus, Virginia, which is four miles from the Tennessee border. Damascus is known as "the friendliest town on the Trail". Jarred said it is one place he definitely will visit again. The AT is now following segments of mountain ranges in the Cherokee National Forest and the

Pisgah National Forest. They are spending tonight (November 18th) at the Kincora Hostel, Dennis Cove Road, Hampton, Tenn. Their present goal is to hike 141 miles to Hot Springs, North Carolina by Wednesday, November 24th. There they will be picked up by hiker John's family, who is spending their Thanksgiving in Asheville, North Carolina. They have graciously offered to adopt the hikers into their family for a holiday feast. I'm sure it will be much appreciated by Jarred, and as his mom, I am comforted that he will not be having ramen noodles for dinner on Thanksgiving!

From Hot Spring, NC they will have 271.8 miles to the summit of Springer Mountain. The AT will take them through the Great Smokey Mountain National Park in North Carolina, then cross into Georgia at Bly Gap for the last 76 miles. Their projected date of arrival at Springer Mountain is December 12th. Jarred will be home for the holidays after completing the 2,178.3 miles known as the Appalachian Trail!

Merry Christmas to our Armed Forces

If anyone would like to donate cookies and Christmas cards to the troops for Christmas, they will be needed by December 5. Donations can be dropped off at the Circle Auto Parts or the Municipal Building, and we will gladly pick them up. We are trying to collect as many Christmas cards as possible. All you need to do is sign the card - do not address to an individual. The Chaplains will make sure they are given out. Do not seal the cards since they are inspected when they get overseas, before they are distributed.

It is getting cold in Afghanistan; they desperately need hand and foot warmers. Also needed are soups, beef-aroni, raviolis, or any other similar items. The men overseas have asked us to thank all of you for the generous donations and they get very excited when they get a package. Money is also always needed, since it now costs $12.50 to ship a box. We are sending about 20 boxes each month, so it can get costly. Dropping off any loose change would be greatly appreciated (a jar is available at the Municipal Building). If you have any questions please email Pam at HelpOurTroops@optonline.net.

Thank you and a very Merry Christmas to all.

CERT Team Completes Home Firearm Safety Course

Members of the Riverdale CERT as well as several interested residents have completed a Home Firearm Safety course sponsored by the National Rifle Association. The course is intended to prepare the CERT team to serve as a resource if their neighbors unexpectedly discover a gun in or around their home. The team and the others attending have received completion certificates for the course which taught proper handling and unloading of these firearms, as well as safety guidelines for those who may have registered firearms in their own homes.

Following the two classroom sessions, the participants experienced hands-on handling and firing of several types of pistols, shotguns and rifles in the Riverdale Pistol range. The course was taught by Ted Guis, a NRA instructor; he was assisted in the course by Russ Hatzel, also of Riverdale, and several NRA instructors.

Residents are encouraged to call upon the Riverdale Police or a neighboring CERT team member immediately upon finding a firearm. Importantly, avoid handling the gun unless you are trained in inspecting it for live ammunition and familiar with how to unload the weapon. An adult should stand watch over the gun until authorities arrive to take possession.

The Riverdale CERT Team will be scheduling several courses throughout 2011 that will enable the group to effectively serve in borough-wide emergency situations and as a safety resource in their homes and neighborhoods. Submitted by OEM Public Information Officer Joan Garcia.

A Haunting in Riverdale

Written by Elaine Peacock, this story originally appeared in the October 2010 issue of Weird NJ

Since New Jersey is called the “Crossroads of the Revolution” it’s only natural that Morris County would contain lovely historical homes. One of these is located in Riverdale. As a child I would pass this house everyday on my way to Riverdale Grammar School. In those days it was known as “Mr. Newbury’s House.” After Mr. Newbury’s death the house was put for sale, and it was at that time I finally got the chance to see the interior of the house. The realtor was a friend of mine and gave me the grand tour.

The home was actually built in two stages, the original house in the 1700s and the addition in the 1800s. When I saw the home, the original slate sink was in the kitchen and the beautiful old broad-board floors echoed my footsteps as I toured the house.

The house was originally a farm house and used as a tenant farm. Renovations were made in 1820 and further renovations were made in 1878 when the Garden Room was added. The extra thick walls were also a surprise, they were found to be hollow. It seems they were used to store an “extra crop” that was being produced for corn whiskey.

When I asked the realtor what they planned to do with the house, she told me that a builder felt the property was far more valuable and wanted to tear the house down and build new homes. Obviously the house had other ideas. The builder’s bid was rejected and my friend Paula Wooten and her family bought the house in 1981 and moved in the autumn of 1982.

After speaking with Paula and hearing stories about the house, I’m sure of one thing - the house picked Paula and vice-versa. Paula loves the old house and did only minor necessary restoration/repair changes. She chose to honor the house’s history. She also felt major changes would only damage the value of the house as a historical property.

Paula also found out there is more than one extra “occupant” in the house. One presence loves her friend Joyce and kisses her on the cheek every time she visits the house. There is a blood spot on the floor in the upstairs hallway. Paula tells me they have tried repeatedly to clean it, but the spot just returns. In late August the stain grows darker. That is when Paula says arguments and the sound of heavy boots moving across the floor are heard. There is also an occupant who lives in one of the beds. The family affectionately calls him “Whitey” and they believe he is the protector of the house.

Children can also be heard running and laughing, but there are no small children in the house.

It’s not just the house that contains history; the barn that is on the property has graffiti scrawled on the wall from Hessian or Revolutionary soldiers. There is also a grave on the property and Paula tells me that it’s the grave of a woman that lived in the house that once stood on the back part of the property. She lived there with her two sisters. The women were thought to be witches. It seems their presence is still felt. At the time of the full moon in June the grave glows and they have seen green smoke rise from it. Artifacts and a foundation where the house once stood have been found.

I must mention two more “occupants” of the house. Every year in the spring an overwhelming smell of fresh flowers fills the front parlor. Paula is not sure if a wake or a wedding was once held in that room, but she does know a spirit of a young woman roams the front area of the house looking out the windows as if she is searching for someone. Piano music is also heard. Paula believes it is one of the daughters searching for her love which never returned. The rustling of her long dress can be heard as she moves around. Paula thinks the spirit may be from the Civil War era.

The spirit that has made the most impact on Paula is the Indian that lives in the basement. Years before the house was ever built Indians lived in the area. Newark Pompton Turnpike was an old Lenni Lenape trail before it actually became an actual road. It seems a farmer’s son was taunting three Indian braves as they were coming down the trail. The Indians told him they would “switch” him (pull off a small branch from a tree and slap the disobedient child on the rump). As the Indians were chasing the boy the farmers came to his aid and confronted the Indians. One Indian was knocked down, hit his head and died. They buried him on the property and years later the house was built over him. In September of 1982 Paula and her family were getting ready to move into the house. Paula said she was in the kitchen when she heard this loud banging coming from the basement. The basement door was vibrating and glassware was falling from the nearby shelves. The banging was very loud. Knowing the history of the house, Paula contacted the local Lenni Lenape Tribe. They told her to perform an Indian burial ceremony over the basement floor. After the ceremony was performed the banging stopped. Paula feels that the Indian’s spirit had finally found peace.

Paula loves Halloween and each year she opens her home on the last full weekend before Halloween for a three night Haunted House. With the help of volunteers she creates a wonderful Halloween treat for all that come through the house. Paula has many great Halloween “props” she has acquired over the years. Some she has found in Greenwich Village, some in New Orleans and others have been given to her. Her Mother’s Day present one year was a witch’s cauldron from her two daughters. As one of the volunteers I get to see her new prop acquisitions, as well as old favorites from prior years. Paula’s house is affectionately known as the “Halloween House.” Paula tells me the “occupants” thoroughly enjoy the Halloween festivities and feel that it is being done for them.

Thank you, Paula, for preserving a piece of New Jersey’s revolutionary past. Also thank you for generously sharing it with others at Halloween and other times of the year.

How to Address Potential Christmas Home Health and Safety Issues

1 Put short table cloths on the table on which you will be serving dinner. Young children just learning to walk and stand may accidentally grab long cloths and could fall or pull hot food items or dishes onto themselves.

2 Remove all bones, gristle and hard-to-chew pieces of meat, especially from turkey or other poultry, before feeding the meat to children under the age of 6.

3 Before adding nuts or hard-to-chew diced fruit, like apples, to any salad or deserts, set aside a portion of the food items large enough to give to children under seven years of age.

4 Make sure there are no artificial (or real) grapes, nuts, holly berries or other small items in holiday centerpieces as they pose a choking hazard for young children who may think the centerpieces are real.

5 Keep candy dishes on top of fireplace mantles, grandfather clocks, china cabinets or other very tall pieces of furniture and out of the reach of young children.

6 Place electrical cords for strings of Christmas lights at the back of the tree so that they cannot be easily reached by young children. Unplug the cords when you retire for the night. When you put lights around a window, try to position a big easy chair, couch, recliner or other piece of furniture with a back, so that you can keep the cord behind the furniture.

Remember Fire Safety

7 Water real Christmas trees daily and completely fill the tree stand to keep the tree needles from drying out before the holiday is over. A dry tree is a fire hazard. Wrap a sheet or holiday tree holder cover around the bottom of the tree so that young children will not be tempted to play in the water and pull the tree down.

8 Hang plastic ornaments on the lower branches of the tree if there will be any young children in the home. Try to purchase shapes other than round ornaments as young children may think the ornaments are balls to be played with.

9 When cutting paper and wrapping packages, make sure that you don't leave scissors, pieces of ribbon, knives or sharp-edged paper cutters out where young children could get to them. Place tools used for cutting and wrapping in a locked cabinet or on top of the highest cupboard.

10 Do not place candles on trees or on tables that are low enough for young children to get to them, as candles start fires each year and children could be burned on hot wax. When leaving home or going to bed, double check to make sure that any candles or tapers have been put out and placed well out of reach of the children. Do the same with lighters, matches or other implements used for lighting them.

11 When leaving home for several hours, unplug your indoor holiday lights, including those for the tree to avoid the potential for creating a fire hazard. Do not leave your porch light on when you leave for an extended period time because that indicates to thieves, who are very active during the holidays, that you are not home. Leave one or two lights on in your house, but not the bathroom light.

12 If you put your tree in an alcove or other area that can be blocked off, you can put a baby gate up to keep young children away from the tree.

13 Candles placed on the tips of tree branches and used in centerpieces, on mantles, and the dried out needles or branches of Christmas trees are a major cause of home fires during the holidays.

Healthy Holiday Eating

- Eat smaller portions of food. This is especially important at a buffet, where you may want to try everything. Choose the items you want to try the most, and eat a small portion of each.
- Eat slowly. Many times, people eat so fast that their stomachs don't have enough time to register that they are full. Savor each bite and enjoy the taste of the food-chances are you will eat less.
- After a meal, go for a walk with your family to see holiday displays in your neighborhood.
- Offer to bring a low-calorie dish to holiday parties. Your host might appreciate it, and you'll know that at least one healthy item will be on hand.
- Don't park yourself in front of the buffet at a party. Mingle! If you stand by the buffet, you'll eat more than you would if it was across the room.
- Avoid fast food. The holiday season can keep you on the go with little time to prepare meals. Fast food may be handy, but often is high in fat. Prepare and freeze quick, healthy meals ahead of time to stay out of the fast food trap.
- Be realistic. Don't try to diet during the holidays; just aim to maintain your present weight.

Food and holiday gatherings go hand in hand. So join in and help yourself to some tasty treats. If you've been exercising, keep it up during the holiday season. If you aren't getting enough exercise, it's a great time to start. With a dash of discipline and a pinch of planning, you'll have a great recipe for holiday fun without the regret that many of us feel the next time we step on a scale.

GAS PIPELINE EXPLODES

Fumes Cover Wide Area After Blast Near Riverdale, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERDALE, N. J., Oct. 28

—A natural gas pipeline exploded here tonight with a roar that was heard ten miles away and that sent fumes over the area. There were no records of casualties.

The explosion occurred at 6:30 o'clock in a wooded area at the end of Greenwich Street in the rear of the Pompton Crushed Stone Company quarry. The pipeline is owned by the Algonquin Gas Transmission Company of Boston.

Police and firemen from Riverdale and Pompton Lakes rushed to the scene. The community is about twenty miles south of the New York State line.

Crewmen from the pipeline company stopped the flow of gas later tonight.

When Riverdale native, Cal Deal, who now lives in Florida, heard about the gas main break on Riverdale Road on Thursday, November 18, it reminded him of a much bigger natural gas incident we had years ago. This is a New York Times(!) article covering the event, appearing in the October 29, 1957 issue.

In Cal's email he recounted one of his memories from his childhood. He and his family lived on Post Lane. In the words of Cal Deal:

I remember when I used to help Maurice Williams prepare the "Thanksgiving" turkeys in what was left of his farm at 66 Post Lane. He would select birds to order in his rows of coops, hang them by their feet and slit their throats. When they were dead, he would dunk them in a garbage can full of boiling water to soften the feathers, then I would pluck them, and he would gut them. Sometimes he would pull the gizzard out of the pile of guts and take a bite out of it like it was a bar of chocolate. I declined his offer of a taste.

Looking at Google Earth, all of that happened in the back yards of the fourth and fifth houses north of Post Lane on the west side of Mead Avenue — the killing field! :)

The incredible thing about the gas main break was the loud roar that just went on and on and on as the gas rushed from the huge pipe. In a town as quiet as Riverdale, it was frightening ... especially to a little kid.

Thanks for the vivid memories, Cal.
